Gov. Brown Appoints Superintendent Matthew Navo to California Collaborative for Educational Excellence Board

This week Governor Edmund G. Brown Jr. appointed Matthew Navo to the Governing Board of the California Collaborative for Educational Excellence ("CCEE").

Navo is the superintendent of the Sanger Unified School District. He has served as superintendent since 2013, but previously served in several positions in Sanger since 1999, including area administrator, director of pupil services, and principal. Prior to coming to Sanger, Navo held several positions in the Clovis Unified School District, including director of learning, summer school principal, counselor, resource specialist case manager, special day class teacher and coach. Navo also serves as adjunct faculty in the Education Department at the California State University, Fresno, and previously served as adjunct faculty at Clovis Community College. He is a member of the Sanger Rotary Club, Association of California School Administrators, American Association of School Administrators, California Practitioners Advisory Group and the California Advisory Commission on Special Education. Navo earned a Masters of Arts degree in special education from California State University, Fresno.

"I'm absolutely delighted by Superintendent Navo's appointment to our board," said Dr. Carl Cohn, Executive Director of the CCEE. "He brings many strengths to our important work--most importantly leading a school system that knows how to get better."

"I am excited to be appointed to the CCEE Governing Board and to work alongside my fellow board members," said Superintendent Navo. "The work of the CCEE is fundamental to making local control function so that our education system better serves all our students, particularly those students who the system continues to leave behind."

The next CCEE Governing Board meeting is scheduled for October 6, 2016. More information is available at www.ccee-ca.org.
