“Rome wasn’t built in a day, but they were laying bricks every hour.” - John Heywood

Which of the critical practices are areas where you’re already operating comfortably based on your existing instructional strategies?

Which of the critical practices are areas where you can make some modest tweaks to instruction in order to lay additional bricks?

Which of the critical practices feels like the heaviest lift or the one that will require the largest shift in practice? Who can you draw upon as a resource?
