II. Purpose

To secure (a) project team(s) to provide services to support the identification, review, development, and delivery of professional learning resources, services, and programs to build capacity for improving student outcomes and support high priority needs for California local educational agencies (“LEAs”).

III. Background and Context

Relevant Statute

CCEE was created to “advise and assist” LEAs with achieving the goals set forth in their Local Control and Accountability Plans (“LCAPs”). (Ed. Code § 52074). In coordination with California’s State System of Support, and in alignment with its Theory of Action, CCEE helps to build the capacity of LEAs to support the continuous improvement of pupil performance, address the achievement gaps between pupil subgroups, and improve outreach and collaboration with stakeholders to ensure that LCAPs reflect the needs of pupils and the community, especially for historically underrepresented or low-achieving populations. (Ed. Code § 52059). Additional information about the System of Support can be found at: <https://www.cde.ca.gov/sp/sw/t1/csss.asp>.

In 2019, the statute outlining the CCEE’s mission (Ed. Code § 52074) was updated to designate school districts that receive emergency apportionments pursuant to specified provisions as being referred to CCEE, after which CCEE will conduct a systemic review of the district. CCEE will further coordinate and facilitate assistance to the district provided by governmental agencies in order to facilitate and provide coherent support.

CCEE also provides technical assistance to school districts that meet specified student performance criteria over a period of three out of four consecutive school years.

More information about CCEE’s technical assistance work can be found at: <https://ccee-ca.org/direct-technical-assistance-support/>.

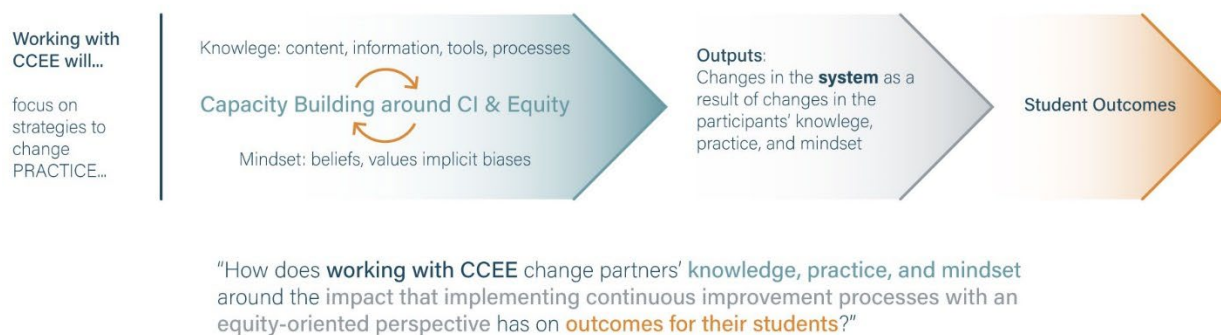

CCEE Theory of Action

As shown in the graphic below, CCEE’s Theory of Action is predicated on our fundamental charge to build capacity at the local level to implement systemic changes that improve student outcomes, especially for historically underrepresented, under-served, or low-achieving student groups.

We have anchored our capacity building around two key concepts central to the work of CCEE: the implementation of continuous improvement processes, and the examination of equity as it relates to decision-making shaping student outcomes. And we have further defined our work around capacity building to include changes in knowledge, information, tools, and processes as well as the changes in beliefs, values, and implicit biases that impact individual- and systems-level decisions that ultimately shape instructional practice.

Ultimately, the question that shapes our work is being able to address, “How does working with CCEE change partners’ knowledge, practice, and mindset around the impact that implementing continuous improvement processes with an equity-oriented perspective has on outcomes for their students?”

Supporting Distance and Hybrid Learning

Governor Newsom’s statewide “Stay Home” Order issued on March 19, 2020, effectively closed public schools throughout California for much of the remaining school year. To support LEA leaders transition their teaching and learning to distance and hybrid learning models, CCEE created short-term partnerships to provide a series of professional learning webinars and tools to support teachers, administrators, paraeducators, and families during Spring 2020. Topics covered through these web-delivered resources included, but were not limited to, setting up virtual classrooms, introduction to using web-based classroom tools and learning management systems, developing school and district-based distance learning plans, increasing rigor through distance learning, family engagement during distance learning, and engaging in actions to promote equity.

More information about distance teaching and learning resources on the CCEE can be found at: <https://ccee-ca.org/resources-center/>.

IV. Scope of Services

CCEE is seeking submissions of professional learning opportunities and materials related to the topics outlined in the “Content Areas” section below (Section IV.B.). These professional learning opportunities should build the capacity of LEAs as they respond to the evolving educational environment in response to COVID-19, distance and hybrid learning, and social justice/equity issues.

CCEE’s professional learning work is anchored in our Theory of Action as described above. In addition to our Theory of Action, CCEE applies our “QRU Rubric” to all identification, development, dissemination, and evaluation of our work. The QRU Rubric is used to assess resources, practices, and supports on three qualities:

- Quality (Q)—Is the tool/resource based on research, evidence, and/or best practice? Is it focused on outcomes and does it provide measurable results?
- Relevance (R)—Does it provide specific guidance and supports for the identified user?
- Usability (U)—Is it immediately usable without requiring time- or effort-consuming adaptations to be effective and applicable?

Respondents should describe how their resources and approach are aligned with CCEE’s Theory of Action focused on capacity building and our QRU Rubric which measures whether resources are evidence-based, specific to user/context, and immediately usable. In addition, Respondents should provide evidence of how their resources and approach have previously demonstrated growth and improvement by participants.

Respondents should address the scheduling of professional learning and propose strategies for reaching educators during non-teaching hours. Additionally, Respondents should address processes to support recruitment, registration, and communication with educators across the state in partnership with CCEE.

In addition to the above, Respondents must include the following components in their proposal:

A. Method of Delivery

Respondents must describe their method of delivery and may identify one or more of the methods of delivery when developing their proposal for the development and delivery of professional learning supports. Delivery methods may be proposed as an individual project or in combination. For example, a proposal may describe a stand-alone training manual to be downloaded from a website or team and individual coaching sessions, or a proposal may describe a combination of training materials, a professional learning series, and follow up coaching. Respondents should include evidence of how their methods have previously demonstrated growth and improvement in building capacity. Methods of delivery may include:

- Development of resources and tools to support professional learning, including but not limited to professional learning and training materials, documents, video, and facilitation guides that will be utilized by CCEE and hosted on the CCEE website and can be accessed asynchronously.
- Development and delivery of professional learning sessions to a variety of audiences, depending on the topic and area of focus of the professional learning session. CCEE is primarily interested in the proposals that describe multi-session, sustained engagement opportunities focusing on interactive learning to support capacity building and student-centered instructional practice rather than single-instance trainings or informational sessions.
- Tailored consultation, coaching supports, and “office hours” to support LEA teams further their learning and support implementation within their local contexts. This method of delivery will likely accompany one or more of the methods identified above, to provide deeper, individualized supports for LEA teams as they implement and refine their instructional practices.
- Describe other research-based, relevant methods of delivery grounded in effective instructional design.

B. Content Areas

To ensure rigorous, student-centered teaching and learning occurs as LEAs transition to and modify their instructional delivery models, CCEE is requesting proposals that address one or more content areas or topics as outlined in Education Code section 43509, subdivision (f)(1)(B)(iv), which is one of the provisions added by Senate Bill 98, the education omnibus trailer bill, and required plans for a distance learning program to include the “professional development and resources [that] will be provided to staff to support the provision of distance learning, including technological support.” Content areas to support instruction within distance or hybrid-learning instructional models may include, but are not limited to:

- Quality Instructional Practice
 - Examining rigor in virtual learning environments
 - Student engagement practices in virtual/hybrid learning environment
 - Universal Design for Learning for diverse learners in a virtual environment
 - Developing and using multi-tiered approach to assessments to inform instruction
 - Identify strategies and resources that might amplify the impact of specific learning management systems (Canvas, Google Classroom, etc)
 - Integrate strategies to support both social-emotional learning and instructional practices to improve outcomes
- Accelerating Learning
 - Strategies to accelerate learning to support student outcomes
 - Selecting appropriate scope and sequences for meeting grade level standards
 - Implement mastery learning techniques, such as pre-assessment/pre-teaching, initial instruction, progress monitoring, intervention instruction, formative assessments and enrichments/extensions, to ensure success
- Social-Emotional Learning (“SEL”) and Well-being
 - Social-emotional learning and well-being supports for students and staff
 - Communicating with and engaging families
 - Creating a positive classroom climate and connectedness online
 - Mental health supports to address isolation and loneliness and strategies to monitor student well-being.
- Supporting Instruction for All Students
 - Designing and delivering inclusive instruction
 - Supporting students with disabilities

 - Supporting foster youth and students experiencing homelessness
 - Supporting and leveraging cultural and linguistic diversity
 - Implementing equity-based practices
- Support for Teachers and Staff
 - Para-educators as an asset in the distance learning context
 - Staff engagement, supports, and strategies to provide professional learning in a virtual setting and the development of a positive school culture/climate
 - Developing and implementing systems, structures, and procedures
 - Supporting the emotional well-being of staff
 - Addressing the needs of counselors with their increased responsibilities
- Data and Technology Support
 - Designing and using effective, equity-oriented data inquiry tools
 - Using learning management systems to effectively support distance or hybrid learning scenarios

In addition to addressing specific content areas, all proposals should also integrate strategies to support educators in addressing equity and racial justice, social-emotional well-being of students and staff, and improvement processes. Additionally, strategies should provide reflective practices to ensure the necessary mindset shifts are achieved to attend to systemic bias and inequities and implement improvement processes. Finally, all proposed professional learning should address implementation, use, and/or practice of the content.

All proposals must include the learning objectives of each resource developed/delivered, and how each objective will be measured, including previous successes. To the extent practicable, objectives should be linked to building the capacity of LEAs and improving student academic, engagement, and social-emotional learning outcomes.

To support LEAs, proposal should also address high priority needs linked to improving student outcomes, including, but not limited to, identifying and addressing achievement gaps between student groups, improving outreach and collaboration with stakeholders to ensure that instructional plans reflect student and community needs, and/or implementation of continuous improvement processes to address any of the above, especially for historically underserved student groups and communities.

CCEE is issuing this RFP to invite applicants to respond to one or more of the Content Areas and Methods of Delivery described above.

The selected Respondent will be expected to work closely with, and under the supervision of, assigned CCEE project staff to complete each of the activities outlined above, including the identification, review, development, and delivery of the professional learning resources, services and programs.
